4 game boards · 16 calling cards

How to play

Give each player a different board. Set out paper counters to cover the pictures; counters are not included. An adult cuts out the 16 calling cards. Shuffle them and place them face down.

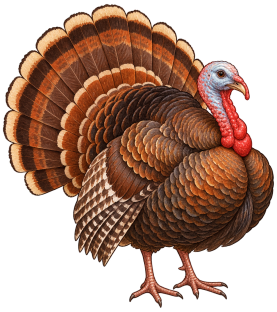

1. The caller draws one card, names the picture and leaves the card face up for everyone to see.
2. Each player finds that picture on their board and covers it with a counter.
3. Keep drawing and covering one picture at a time.
4. Complete any full horizontal row or vertical column of four pictures, then say “Bingo!” Diagonals and four corners do not count.
5. Check the line against the cards already drawn. If more than one player finishes a line on the same call, they share the win. Clear the boards and shuffle the cards to play again.

All four boards use the same 16 pictures in different arrangements. A full house would finish at the same time for everyone, so use a row or column to decide the win. Name the pictures together before the first round and leave called cards visible.

Choose A4 or US Letter to match your paper. Print at 100% / Actual Size. Before cutting, check that each calling card measures 47 × 47 mm and that the whole board is visible.
